- Agenda Item #9: The process/channels for documentation

This session was facilitated by Jerome Uneje. She stated to participants that the reason they were all present in today's meeting is to collectively monitor, report and document petty offences and SRHR violations. She stated that before we begin any intervention, we should make sure it is verified. She explained that one of the process of collecting data is from the media. She emphasized the need for data to be verified so that all data to be inputted into the tool will be concrete. She further explained to participants that another means of harvesting violations is through their existing networks, social media, National Newspapers amongst other to get violations and they can send these violations through emails, WhatsApp or can be sent through transport services. She stated that Lawyers Alert will bear the cost of transporting and other ancillary costs associated with harvesting and documenting violations. In addition, Roseline explained to all that that any violation that is not reported, simply means it never happened.
